Let's read the text and answer the questions

Last year we booked a room at a very luxurious hotel for our holiday. When we arrived at the hotel, the first thing we did was to see whether it was clean or not. We were extremely interested in the kitchen, which was located in the back of the building. There we saw large, open shelves filled with pots, saucepans and plates. These were clean, but the floors were filthy. The kitchen staff were not wearing a hat. We know that the purpose of wearing a hat in a kitchen is to keep hair from falling into the food. We also noticed that the food was not kept covered, and there were many insects around. We saw even a cat inside and thus we made up our minds not to stay in that hotel. We were fortunate enough to find a cheap and clean hotel by the ocean shortly thereafter.
